INTRODUCTION

THE present work is an attempt to record the writings of a living author, and the difficulties which have been experienced in its making are, with one exception, common to all works of this kind. For example, Sir James Barrie at one time suffered, like his contemporaries, from the "pirate" presses in America. Unauthorised volumes thus produced mostly contain reprints of selected unsigned contributions to periodicals which the author himself has shown no desire to preserve in collected form. Further, it may be doubted if the persons responsible for these volumes were always gifted with an unerring literary instinct, or that the material selected always included work which the author would care to acknowledge as his. Such as they are, these volumes, or rather, I had better say, all that are known to me, are noted in the following pages.

There has been, however, a graver difficulty attending the compilation of this Bibliography. It must include some record of Barrie's contributions to periodicals already mentioned—that is, of the extensive output of a writer who once upon a time, in R. L. Stevenson's celebrated phrase, had "a journalist at his elbow." An appendix to Mr Hammerton's J. M. Barrie: the Man and His Work (1900) contains some interesting details of this early journalism. Mr Hammerton has kindly given permission for the use of the appendix to his biography, and I gladly avail myself of it in regard to contributions appearing in the weekly edition of The Nottingham Journal. The notes in Mr Hamerton's book were prefaced by a remark as to the ease with which complete details of Barrie's journalism could be given if a compiler were so minded. This optimism can hardly be echoed by anyone approaching the task from a practical point of view. At all events, it is not claimed that the list of Barrie's journalism to be found in this Bibliography is complete or that the notes here of unsigned contributions to newspapers can be given without a certain amount of reserve. Except in special instances, newspaper leaders and "middles" are not included, for the obvious reason that to establish their identity after a lapse of so many years would be quite impossible.

Barrie's career has provided many a writer with the subject of an article or paragraph. Anecdotes appear periodically in the Press with a persistence that recalls the incident in When a Man's Single concerning the deadly effects on the health from the pressure on the hand of knobbed walking-sticks.

A bibliography is concerned with evidence of a definite kind. Therefore I am not in a position to affirm or deny the story of Barrie's earliest appearance in print—that letter beloved of paragraphists, signed "Paterfamilias," which, it is alleged, was written by him to a local paper protesting against the excessive amount of homework given out by the Dumfries Academy at which he was then a scholar.¹ We are on altogether different ground when we recall a speech delivered at Dumfries when the freedom of that city was conferred upon him. Barrie,

reviving memories of his earliest literary ambitions, spoke of a time when . . . I was then—it is now revealed for the first time—I was then writing my first novel. It was a very cynical work, entitled “A Child of Nature”—she was not really that kind. It was a tale of Dumfries. Several of you were in it. A long thing—one hundred thousand words. A year ago I came upon the manuscript and, you will be relieved to hear, gently tore it up, just in case it should fall into the wrong hands, you know . . . (The Morning Post, 12th December 1924.)

And again:

. . . My first play was very properly written for the Dumfries Academy Dramatic Society, on whose boards I also made my only appearance as an actor. . . . It was in order to escape from feminine rôles that I wrote for the Academy my first play, a staggering work entitled “Bandelero the Bandit.” . . . (Ibid.)

According to the Press historians, an early play was written at Nottingham. This, it would appear, was entitled Polly's Dilemma, and the late H. G. Hibbert, who was a Nottingham contemporary and ought to have known better, went so far as to allege that the play was printed in a Christmas extra of The Nottingham Journal. An attempt to verify this statement led to the discovery that no copy of the Christmas number for 1883 appears to be in existence. There is none in the British Museum, and I am indebted to the City Librarian and also the editor of The Nottingham Journal for the information that no copy is officially preserved at Nottingham itself. Later I learned that there is the best of reasons for rejecting the notion that a play of the title mentioned was ever written by Barrie.

We know from Barrie himself, in another amusing reminiscence, that he wrote leaders in an Edinburgh newspaper when "at College looking for a short cut to greatness."¹ This was The Edinburgh Courant. He graduated at Edinburgh University in 1882 and his professional career may be considered to have opened at Nottingham in 1883. For a very modest stipend (three pounds per week, it has been said) he wrote in The Nottingham Journal five leaders a week, a weekly special article, a gossip column ("A Modern Peripatetic"), and book reviews. The Nottingham Journal printed a weekly edition in which most of Barrie's special articles and gossip columns were reprinted. It has not been previously recorded, I think, that a process of deduction shows that among his contributions to this weekly edition was an early attempt at a sustained work of fiction, and probably his first to be printed. This was a serial story entitled Vagabond Students, a work which bears some resemblance to the play Jane Annie which Barrie afterwards wrote with Sir A. Conan Doyle. Vagabond Students was advertised in a "display advertisement" as follows in the daily issue of The Nottingham Journal on 19th May 1883:—

. . . On the following Saturday (June 2) will be commenced a new story by the author of The Complete Playgoer, entitled

VAGABOND STUDENTS

Chapter 1.—The End of the Session.

Chapter 2.—A Students' Supper Party.

VAGABOND STUDENTS

Will tell how four Academic Cads

And one academic gentleman spent the Long Vacation.

¹ The British Weekly, 23rd September 1887.

VAGABOND STUDENTS

"Man," said the law student nervously, "was not meant to live alone." "Go to bed," rejoined Sandilands sternly, "and sleep it off, or I'll punch your head."

VAGABOND STUDENTS

"Grind, grind, grind! With eyelids heavy and red,
A student sat in his lonely digs
With a wet towel round his head."

VAGABOND STUDENTS

Will relate how five undergraduates conducted a Punch and Judy Show round Scotland.

VAGABOND STUDENTS

"I know why I'm plucked," said Gentleman Chimley,
"the professors have a spite against me. That's the reason."

VAGABOND STUDENTS

"Nice little girl?" asked Pratt. "Not bad," admitted Chimley.

VAGABOND STUDENTS

"I'm plucked, I do admit it, I'm spun, my mother dear,
Yet do not grieve at that which happens every year.
I've waited very patiently, I may have long to wait,
But you've another son, mother, and he will graduate."

VAGABOND STUDENTS

"If you're a cynic, Jennie, it's your duty to hang yourself."

VAGABOND STUDENTS

Will tell what the scholastic vagrants did, how they did it, who (sic) they did, and who did them.

In October 1884, in a way now perhaps even better known in provincial journalism, the then proprietors of The Nottingham Journal "economised" by substituting syndicated articles for those written by its staff. In consequence Barrie came to London. Previously, however, work by him had found its way to the London Press. His first article there, in The Pall Mall Gazette, is duly noted in its place. It has been asserted that Barrie's first attempts at fiction appeared in Bow Bells, an excessively sentimental fiction magazine of the 'eighties, but it is obvious that Bow Bells in this connection has been badly mistaken for Home Chimes, a very different kind of periodical and one to which, of course, Barrie did contribute.

Incomplete as the section of this Bibliography concerned with contributions to periodicals must be, it does at least give some idea of Barrie's industry as a journalist. He has paid tribute, both in print and in a speech at a dinner on 8th April 1905, to Frederick Greenwood, who will go down to history as the man who secured the purchase of the Suez Canal shares and as the first London editor to give Barrie regular employment on The St. James's Gazette. A bi-weekly series of articles in The Edinburgh Evening Dispatch, then edited by Alexander Riach, covered a long period and many now familiar topics until their place was taken by W. G. Grace's cricket reminiscences. One of the Edinburgh articles led to an invitation by Robertson Nicoll to contribute to The British Weekly. This was a significant engagement, since if these notes included articles written about Barrie it would be evident that the first appreciation of Barrie's literary rather than journalistic gifts came from quarters over which Robertson Nicoll wielded considerable influence. Another of Barrie's editors, and one who has been wrongly given the credit of "discovering" him, was F. W. Robinson, the novelist, who recruited him for Home Chimes. Early work is also to be found in The Speaker, The Illustrated London News, then being revived by Mr Clement Shorter, The Graphic, and The Scots (afterwards National) Observer, over which Henley ruled.

Barrie's connection with The National Observer should be recalled since it led to the production at a single matinée performance in 1891 of his first acted play, Richard Savage. This was written in collaboration with H. B. Marriott Watson, and its production was something in the nature of a National Observer festival, a prologue being written for the occasion by the formidable editor. The play itself in its printed form is now one of the rarest of all Barrie books.

In the early 'nineties Barrie's journalism decreased, the present writer is glad to say, in proportion to his absorption in literature and the drama. By 1891 articles already began to appear reprinted in other newspapers ("with permission"), the author evidently being no longer desirous of supplying new ones. The great success which the Auld Licht books achieved is reflected in the issue by Robertson Nicoll, so early in Barrie's (or any) career, of a British Weekly biographical "extra" entirely devoted to him. This was in 1891, and some months before, though perhaps not altogether disconnected with, the publication of The Little Minister, a book which consolidated his fame. While the novels were being published at fairly regular intervals several of his early dramatic pieces remained, and still remain, unpublished, and therefore have no place in this Bibliography except in a preliminary list. His first play to be produced for a run—Walker, London (1892)—waited some fifteen years before it was printed, and then only in a form intended for the use of amateur actors. The Professor's Love Story is among those not yet printed. Only old playgoers with good memories can judge of the development from these early pieces to the Barrie play of to-day as we know it. There is a passage from Ibsen's Ghost, or Toole-up-to-Date, quoted by Mr Walbrook (J. M. Barrie and the Theatre) about which I naturally became inquisitive, and Mr Walbrook was good enough to tell me that this extract from the text was quoted by him from memory. I have been unable to throw light on another suggestion, namely, that this same play appeared in a German version, presumably at the hands of a critic who with characteristic thoroughness desired to give an exact idea of the satire with which Ibsenism was being met in this country. No less an authority than the late William Archer was unable to locate in his memory any such version.

To these biographical details in connection with the theatre may be added more properly than elsewhere a note of reference to Barrie's evidence before the Joint Select Committee on Stage Plays (Censorship) on 6th August 1909. His evidence is found in the Report . . . Together with the Proceedings, etc. (No. 303), pp. 100–8.

There remains only to record the fact, happily well known in bibliography, that compilers of such works as these meet with nothing but cordial and courteous assistance on all sides. Acknowledgment of much of this help is incorporated in the text. But in addition I should like to express my thanks here to Mr T. J. Wise, Mr William K. Dickson, Librarian, and the other officials of the National Library of Scotland; to the staff of the Library of Congress, Washington; to Mr E. V. Lucas, Mr Chester M. Cate (of the Huntington Library), Mr G. W. Shirley (of the Dumfries Library), Miss A. M. Nill, Mr G. H. Sargent, Messrs Hodder & Stoughton, Charles Scribner's Sons; and also to Mr Wilfred Partington, the Editor of The Bookman's Journal.

BETTER DEAD: 1887

Better Dead / By / J. M. Barrie / [publishers' device] /
London / Swan Sonnenschein, Lowrey, & Co. /
Paternoster Square / 1888

Collation: Crown 8vo ($7 \times 5\frac{1}{8}$ inches); pp. vi+145, consisting of: blank leaf; Half-title (verso bears in the centre an Imprint: "Printed by / Spottiswoode and Co., New-Street Square / London"), pp. [i, ii]; Title-page as above (verso blank), pp. [iii, iv]; Contents (verso blank), pp. [v, vi]; Text, pp. [1]-145; Imprint as before at foot of p. 145; the reverse of p. 145 is blank; followed by a blank leaf; signatures: B-K⁸, L², preceded by a half-sheet, unsigned, folded to make 4 leaves.

Issued in yellow boards with black lettering on front cover: "One Shilling / Better / Dead / By / J. M. Barrie / London / Swan Sonnenschein, Lowrey & Co., / Paternoster Square"; the initial B in "Better" is in blue, representing a belt to which is attached a blood-stained dagger which, with its sheath, form the upright portion of the letter; the same part of the D in "Dead" consists of a revolver, also in blue, the curved portion of the letter being a coiled rope in red; between the author's name and that of the publisher is a bearded figure waiting behind a corner for two figures, representing Sir William Harcourt and Lord Randolph Churchill, both of which are seen in shadow on the fore-wall; inside, the front wrapper is half occupied with advts.

of Rowlands Odonto, the other half with advts. of "New Novels"; inside back cover is blank; outside is an advertisement of Dr Collis Browne's Chlorodyne; edges trimmed.

First published in November 1887, but post-dated 1888. A second edition appeared later in 1888, corresponding with the above issue in coloured boards except for the words "Second Edition" appearing on the title below the publishers' device. The work was published together with "My Lady Nicotine": New York: Lovell, Coryell & Co., undated [? 1890]; pp. 82+198; and subsequently it appeared separately: New York: Rand, McNeil & Co. (Globe Libr., No. 165), 1891.

There was an article by Barrie entitled "Better Dead" in The St James's Gazette, April 21, 1885, which doubtless contained the germ of this book. The same subject was also treated in an article in The Edinburgh Evening Dispatch, Jan. 13, 1886.

AULD LICHT IDYLLS: 1888

Auld Licht Idylls. / By / J. M. Barrie, / Author of "Better Dead." / London / Hodder and Stoughton, / 27, Paternoster Row. / MDCCCLXXXIII / [All rights reserved.]

Collation: Crown 8vo ($7\frac{1}{2} \times 5\frac{7}{8}$ inches); pp. viii+250, consisting of: Half-title (verso blank), pp. [i, ii]; Title-page as above (verso blank), pp. [iii, iv]; Dedication: "To / Frederick Greenwood." (verso blank), pp. [v, vi]; Contents (verso blank), pp. [vii, viii]; Text, pp. [1]-250; followed by 2 pages of publishers' advertisements; signatures: 2-17⁸, 18², preceded by an unregistered half-sheet folded to make 4 leaves; there is no imprint.

Issued in blue buckram, gilt lettered on spine: "Auld / Licht / Idylls / J. M. Barrie", and at foot: "Hodder & Stoughton", each enclosed in a single-line rectangular frame; top edges gilt, others untrimmed; end-papers green.

First published in April 1888. This work was first published in the United States: New York: Lovell, Coryell & Co., without date [? 1890]; pp. ii+249; the first authorised edition in America was: New York: C. Scribner's Sons, 1897.

In the introduction to the reprint of this work in the "Author's" edition (see No. 53) Barrie wrote: "Many of the chapters appeared in different form in The St. James's Gazette, and there is little doubt they would never have appeared anywhere but for the encouragement given me by the editor of that paper [Frederick Greenwood]. It was pressure from him that induced me to write a second 'Idyll' and a third after I thought the first completed the picture. . . ."

The original appearances of articles in The St. James's Gazette, upon which this work was based, were as follows:

"An Auld Licht Community," Nov. 17, 1884.

"An Auld Licht Funeral," Jan. 9, 1885.

"Auld Licht Courtship," Jan. 26, 1885.

"An Auld Licht Scandal," Feb. 5, 1885.

"An Auld Licht Wedding," Feb. 14, 1885.

"The Auld Licht in Arms," March 12, 1885.

Two pieces appeared in The British Weekly over the signature of "Gavin Ogilvy":

"Cree Queery and Mysy Drolly," Aug. 19, 1887.

"An Old Dominie," Sept. 16, 1887.

One piece, "The Courting of T'nowhead's Bell", had not previously been printed.

(verso blank); Dedication (verso blank), pp. [vii, viii]; Contents, pp. [ix], x; Table of Illustrations, pp. [xi], xii; Text, pp. [1]-232; at foot of p. 232 is imprint: "Printed by R. & R. Clark, Edinburgh."; 18 plates engraved by William Hole and signed "W. H." inserted, each being protected by sheets of tissue-paper; signatures: 2-15⁸, 16⁴, preceded by an unsigned half-sheet folded to make 4 leaves, a gathering in which two leaves are inserted, one after the second and another after the third leaf.

Issued in an edition limited to 550 copies and printed on hand-made paper; bound in blue cloth, gilt lettered on spine: "Auld / Licht / Idylls / J. M. Barrie"; at foot: "Hodder & Stoughton," each contained in a double-line rectangular frame; end-papers cream; edges untrimmed.

Published in May 1895. This large-paper edition appeared in the United States: New York: R. F. Fenno & Co., [1895]; pp. 192 and plates.

The illustrator, William Hole (1846-1917), was born at Salisbury, his father being a member of an old Devonshire family. He followed his brother, a doctor, to Edinburgh, where for a time he studied engineering and was a pupil of Fleeming Jenkin. He is remembered as a painter by his decorations for the Scottish National Portrait Gallery at Edinburgh and for the City Chambers; as an engraver Hole was chiefly notable for his renderings of the work of landscape painters, and as an illustrator he is especially remembered for his illustrations of Scott, Stevenson, and Barrie. (See also Memoirs of William Hole By His Wife. London: W. & R. Chambers, Ltd., 1920.)

WHEN A MAN'S SINGLE: 1888

When A Man's Single. / A Tale Of Literary Life. / By / J. M. Barrie, / Author of "Auld Licht Idylls," Etc. / London: / Hodder & Stoughton, / 27, Paternoster Row. / MDCCCLXXXVIII. / [rule] [All rights reserved.]

Collation: Crown 8vo ($7\frac{1}{2} \times 5\frac{1}{2}$ inches); pp. 289, consisting of: Half-title (verso contains advt. of "Auld Licht Idylls" enclosed in single-line border), pp. [1, 2]; Title-page as above (verso blank), pp. [3, 4]; Contents (verso blank), pp. [5, 6]; Dedication: "To / W. Robertson Nicoll, M.A." (verso blank), pp. [7, 8]; Text, pp. [9]–289; the reverse of p. 289 contains in centre an imprint: "The Gresham Press, / Unwin Brothers, / Chilworth and London."; followed by [2] pp. of publishers' advertisements; signatures: 2–18⁸, 19², preceded by an unregistered sheet folded to make 8 leaves.

Issued in blue buckram, gilt lettered on back: "When / A Man's / Single / J. M. Barrie", and at foot: "Hodder & Stoughton", each enclosed in a single-line rectangular frame; top edges gilt, others unopened; end-papers green.

First published in October 1888. It first appeared in the United States: New York: Harper & Bros., 1889, in "Harpers Franklin Square Library," No. 636, pp. 234; the first authorised American edition was: New York: C. Scribner's Sons, 1896.

In the introduction to the reprint of this work in the "Author's" edition (see No. 53) Barrie wrote: "'When A Man's Single' was first published from week to week in The British Weekly; it began to appear there before more than two chapters of it were written; soon I was only one chapter ahead, and after that, I think, I never increased the distance between us, though I could feel its breath on my neck. . . ." The serial appearance in The British Weekly referred to was from Oct. 7, 1887, to March 23, 1888, under the name of "Gavin Ogilvy."

A WINDOW IN THRUMS: 1889

RICHARD SAVAGE [WITH H. B. MARRIOTT
WATSON]: 1891

Privately Printed [underlined] / Richard Savage. /
A Play / In Four Acts.

Collation: Foolscap 8vo. ($7 \times 4\frac{7}{8}$ inches); pp. 42, consisting of: Title-page as above (verso blank), pp. [1, 2]; leaf, recto of which is headed: "Richard Savage. / Characters." followed by dramatis personæ and list of scenes (verso blank), pp. [3, 4]; Text, pp. [5]–42; signatures [A], B⁸, C⁴⁺¹, i.e., 2 sheets (the first unregistered) are folded to make 8 leaves each, followed by a half-sheet folded to make 4 leaves, to the inner margin of the verso of the last of which is pasted 1 inserted leaf.

Issued without wrappers, the title serving as front cover; edges trimmed; stapled.

This play, which was written by Sir James Barrie in collaboration with H. B. Marriott Watson, was the first of his dramatic works to be given a public performance. It was produced at a special matinée at the Criterion Theatre on April 16, 1891. A Prologue, written for the occasion by W. E. Henley, was printed on the programme, but it does not appear in the above. The Prologue is found among the Three Prologues in Henley's Poems (Collected Edition, Macmillan, 1921, in the vol. "Poems," p. 220–22).

copy in the possession of the late William Archer, this being the only copy in this country known to the compiler. It is now, together with the rest of Mr. Archer's dramatic library, owned by the British Drama League. The compiler is indebted, however, to Mr. Chester M. Cate of the Henry Huntington Library and Art Gallery, San Remo, California, for details of a copy in its original state owned by that library. Without these details the collation given above would have been incorrect owing to difficulties arising from Mr. Archer's copy being bound up in a collection and somewhat cut by the binder.)

First published in October 1891; an edition in one volume appeared in February 1892. Its first American edition was: New York: The United States Book Co., 1891, and there was also an edition: New York: J. W. Lovell Co. [1891], 8vo: pp. 310; an edition appeared: New York: American Publishers' Corporation, [1897] erroneously described as "a new edition revised by the author," since no revised text has been printed at any time; a Bohemian translation appeared in 1900: "Maly / Farář. / Napsal / J. M. Barrie. / Z Angl. Přeložil Jos. Bartoš / V. Praze. / Knihtiskárna J. Otto Nakladatelství / 1900"; 8vo, pp. 485+5.

This work was first printed in serial form in Good Words, Jan.-Dec., 1891. The MS. of "The Little Minister" passed into the possession of the late Dr. W. Robertson Nicoll, and is still owned by his family; another MS., however, 537 pp., 3 vols., bound in red morocco, was bought by Messrs. Maggs for £325, 10s. at Christie's at the Red Cross sale, April 22, 1918.

A special "Maude Adams" edition was issued as follows:

(II)

THE "MAUDE ADAMS" EDITION: 1898

Octavo (9 inches); 1 blank leaf; 3 printed leaves unnumbered; 375 pp.; front. and 23 plates.

There is no list of plates; 8 are from photographs; and all the rest except one or two are signed by Gilbert.

Bound in grey ribbed buckram; black lettered and with thistle in brown; side with female portrait in sepia within gilt oval; top edges cut but not gilt; other edges uncut.

Verso of Title-page : "Copyright 1891 and 1895 / By United States Book Co. / Copyright 1898 / By Robert Howard Russell."

Note :—"Note / The illustrations in this book have / been made especially for this / edition of The Little Minister / by arrangement with Mr. Charles Frohman, / through whose courtesy they are here re- / produced. Many of them were drawn by / C. Allen Gilbert, while others are from photographs which appear here for the first time."

The name signed on the plates is spelled Allan.

(12)

PLATES ISSUED SEPARATELY FOR THE "MAUDE
ADAMS" EDITION: [1898]

The plates issued separately for "The Little Minister" are in an envelope, printed in orange as follows: 'In preparing "The Little Minister" for the stage, Mr. Barrie made a number of changes in the story, introducing an entire new scene which did not appear in the novel. In order that this edition of the book might be as complete as possible, six of the best episodes in this scene have been reproduced, together with a fine engraved portrait of Miss Adams, so that in addition to the illustration of the story, these souvenirs of the play and of Miss Adams accompany each volume.'

The above statement begins with a large floriated initial I. There is nothing about the envelope or the plates to identify them with the "Maude Adams" edition.

(The above two descriptions of the "Maude Adams" edition and the separately issued plates were made from the copies in the Henry Huntington Library and Art Gallery, San Remo, California, by Mr. Clifford B. Clapp, and to whom I am indebted through the courtesy of Mr. Chester M. Cate, the assistant librarian.)

The dramatised version of "The Little Minister" was first produced in London at the Haymarket Theatre on Nov. 6, 1897, having been performed for copyright purposes for one performance in the previous July. In connection with this production a souvenir was issued as follows:

Collation: Demy 8vo ($8\frac{1}{2} \times 5\frac{5}{8}$ inches); pp. 49 [48], consisting of: Title-page as above (on verso is caste of the piece headed by note: "Produced at the Savoy Theatre, London, under the management of Mr. / R. D'Oyly Carte, on Saturday, 13th May, 1893."), pp. [1, 2]; Text, pp. [3]-48 (wrongly numb. 49); at the foot of last page of text is imprint: "Henderson & Spalding, Ltd., Marylebone, W."; followed by [2] pp. of advertisements; signatures: [A], B⁸, [C]⁸⁻¹⁺², [D]², i.e., an unregistered sheet (8 leaves); one sheet registered B (8 leaves); an unregistered sheet (gathering of 8 leaves in the centre of which are inserted 2 slightly smaller leaves which are paginated 40a-40d, while the last leaf of the gathering (C8) is cancelled; followed by a quarter-sheet folded to make 2 leaves, the verso of the first is printed upon and paginated 48, but is pasted over by a smaller inserted leaf, the pasted-down recto of which is blank, while the verso carries the conclusion of the text and is wrongly paginated 49; the second leaf of the quarter-sheet contains advts. The text both as regards the inserted leaves (pp. 40a-40d) and the pasted leaf is disconnected.

Issued in light green wrappers with the title printed on front cover as on title-page, but in different types, and all excepting the last line enclosed in a frame made up of one thick and two thin lines and ornamental corners; insides of both covers contain publishers' advertisements; edges trimmed; sewn.

The above description conforms with the copy in the British Museum (1179. dd. 2(5)), and also with that in the possession of Mr. Rupert D'Oyly Carte, which he courteously allowed the compiler to examine for the purposes of these notes. Another issue, however, was published and this is exemplified in the only copy preserved by Messrs Chappell & Co., Ltd., the publishers, which was also collated with this firm's kind permission. In this later issue the scene contained on the two inserted leaves (pp. 40a-40d) is printed in its place in a continuous text, beginning midway on p. 40 and ending on the last line of p. 43. The whole text occupies in this issue pp. [3]-52; at the foot of p. 52 is an imprint as above; there is no leaf at end with publishers' advertisements; signatures: [A], B, [C]^s, [D]².

In answer to an inquiry respecting these two issues, the publishers, Messrs. Chappell & Co., Ltd., state: "It is so long ago since the Libretto of the above ('Jane Annie') was printed that it is difficult for us to give you the precise information that you desire. We are under the impression, however, that there were two editions printed of this Libretto at the time the piece was produced at the Savoy Theatre, and only a limited number of copies were printed of these editions, owing to the failure of the production. . . ."

With regard to the origin of this opera which was produced, as stated above, on May 13, 1893, Sir A. Conan Doyle has kindly supplied the following note for publication here: "Mr. Barrie was ill and unable to finish this 2-act piece. He had already done Act I and part of 2. The plot, etc. was fixed. He asked me to help, which I did, doing most of the lyrics in Act 2. The play was not a success. Barrie at the last moment put in the marginal notes about Caddie."

ALLAHAKBARRIES C.C.: 1893

Private [underlined] / Allahakbarries / C.C. / [small typogr. ornament] / 1893.

Collation: Foolscap 8vo ($6\frac{7}{8} \times 4\frac{3}{8}$ inches); pp. 12, consisting of Title-page as above (verso blank), pp. [1, 2]; List of officers of the team, p. [3]; "The Eleven," pp. [4-6]; "Hints," pp. [7-9]; "Remarks," pp. [10-11]; p. [12] is blank; large typogr. ornament on pp. [9] and [11]; without pagination, headlines or signatures; [a]⁶; hand-made paper, having watermark with coronet and fleur-de-lys surmounting initials: "T. G. L."

Privately printed for Sir James Barrie for circulation among his friends; the title-page acts as front cover; sewn; edges untrimmed.

(The above description was made by kind permission from the copy in the possession of Sir Bernard Partridge.)

The following appeared in the Catalogue of the Sale of "the Property of a Gentleman," July 22, 1922, by Messrs. Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge:

BARRIE (Sir James, O.M.) Allihakbarries (sic) C.C. Auto.

MS. 4 pp. with three proofs, one containing numerous auto. corrections, of the (privately) printed pamphlet, and a copy of the finished pamphlet, half yellow morocco,
i. e. g. 1893

* * A most interesting relic of Barrie's journalistic days on the National Observer. The pamphlet contains:

I. A. list of members of the cricket club, including:

Hon. Presidents: Beau Austin, Esq.
Terence Mulvany, Esq.
Old Mel, Esq.
Sergeant Troy, Esq.

Subsidised Crowd: Jerome, J. K.

II. Characters of the eleven, e.g.: Barrie (Capt.).

An Incomparable Captain. The life and soul of his side. A treat to see him tossing the penny. Hits well off his pads. Once took a wicket.

One of the members is described as "The worst batsman in the world. Equally at home with the ball."

III. Hints to the Team by their Captain, e.g.:

Should you hit the ball, run at once. Don't stop to cheer.

IV. Remarks on the Great Match at Shere:

The Captain . . . received valuable help from Watson (who played a masterly innings of 2), from Whibley (who defied the best bowling in Shere for nearly a minute), from the hard-hitting Partridge (who would be invaluable against his own bowling), and from Tomson, who looked like scoring at any moment, etc.

The volume was given to the present owner by James Nicol Dunn, managing editor of the National Observer, and bears his autograph inscription.

The copy referred to, which is bound together with the MS., was then acquired by Sir W. Garth, and subsequently, at the sale of his library on May 30, 1923, was purchased by Mr. A. J. A. Symons, but is now owned by a collector in the north of England.

Collation: 8vo (19·7×13·2 cm.), pp. viii+121, consisting of: Half-title (verso blank), pp. [i, ii]; Title-page as above (on verso in centre: "Copyright, 1900 / By J. M. Barrie / [short line] / All rights reserved" and at foot imprint: "Trow Directory / Printing and Book-binding Company / New York"), pp. [iii, iv]; Characters (verso blank), pp. [v, vi]; Synopsis of Scenery (verso blank), pp. [vii, viii]; fly-title: Act First (verso blank), not included in pagination; Text, pp. 1-121; verso of p. 121 blank, followed by a blank leaf; no signatures [a⁴, b-h⁸, i⁶].

Issued in grey-green paper wrappers, lettered on front cover as on title-page, verso and back cover blank.

Of this were printed sufficient copies only to satisfy the copyright law in the United States. The copyright entry-stamp of the Library of Congress, Washington, states that two copies were received, Nov. 21, 1900. The Catalogue of the Library of Congress contains a note: "No record of publication is found in Publishers' Weekly, in the Annual American Catalogue, in Scribner's catalogue of publications and importations in the Publishers' trade annual, nor in other catalogues or bibliographies consulted." It may be of interest to add that when an inquiry was made at Messrs. Scribner's a reply was received stating that this play, so far as they could find, had never been issued in book form.

Collation: 16mo ($5\frac{1}{8} \times 3\frac{1}{4}$ inches); pp. 16, consisting of:
Half-title (verso blank), pp. [1, 2]; Title-page as above (verso blank), pp. [3, 4]; cut of Meredith's House at Box-Hill (verso blank), pp. [5, 6]; Text, pp. 7-[16]; at foot of p. [16], below line, is imprint: "Chiswick Press:
Charles Whittingham and Co. / Took's Court, Chancery Lane, London"; each page, excepting blanks, contains a single-line red border; no signatures; a half-sheet is folded to make 8 leaves.

Issued in cream-coloured cloth boards, lettered in gilt on front cover: "George / Meredith / 1909 / By J. M. Barrie"; front and back cover has single-line red border; edges untrimmed; cream end-papers. Published in December 1909.

This appreciation first appeared in The Westminster Gazette,
May 26, 1909, under the title of "Neither Dorking nor the Abbey," and was dated from "Box-Hill, May 22," the day of Meredith's funeral. It was reprinted in The Saturday Westminster Gazette, May 29, 1909. (See also Buxton Forman, Bibl. Meredith, pp. 315-6, and Meredithiana, p. 226.)

GEORGE MEREDITH [Mosher Pirate Edition]:
1911

George Meredith / By J. M. Barrie / [publisher's device in red] / Portland Maine / Thomas B. Mosher

/ MDCCCCXI [title ruled in red and divided into three compartments.]

Collation: 12mo ($5\frac{7}{16} \times 3\frac{3}{4}$ inches); pp. viii + 10, consisting of: 4 blank leaves; Half-title (on verso sonnet by W. Brimley Johnson), pp. [i, ii]; Title-page as above (verso blank), pp. [iii, iv]; Foreword, pp. v, vi; poem by Thomas Hardy (verso blank), pp. [vii, viii]; Fly-title: "George Meredith / 1909" (on verso: "Box-hill / May 22, 1909"); Text, pp. 3-[10]; followed by leaf on which is: "Nine Hundred And Fifty Copies Of / This Book Printed on Van Gelder / Hand-Made Paper And The Type Distributed / [publisher's device]" (verso blank); followed by 5 blank leaves; each printed page is red ruled; without signatures: [A-D⁴, E²].

Issued in vellum, lettered in gilt on front cover: "George Meredith / 1909 / J. M. Barrie [ruled in red]"; on upper right-hand side of lower cover is conventional flower in red and blue.

This was previously printed by Mr. Mosher as a foreword to his annual catalogue of books, 1910, and was subsequently reprinted by him in book form, 1912 and 1914. Mr. Mosher wrongly states in his foreword to the edition described above that The Pall Mall Gazette was the paper in which this work originally appeared. An edition under the title of "Neither Dorking nor the Abbey" appeared at Chicago, Browne's Bookstore, 1910. This presumably was the first American edition in book form.

Regarding this play, it may be recalled that during its run at the Empire Theatre, New York, Mr. William Gillete read to the audience a letter from the author:—

“Dear Brutus is an allegory about a gentleman called John Bull, who, years and years ago, missed the opportunity of his life. The ‘Mr. Dearth’ of the play is really John Bull. The play shows how on the fields of France father and daughter get a second opportunity. Are now the two to make it up permanently, or for ever drift apart? A second chance comes to few. As for a third chance, who ever heard of it? It’s now or never. If it is now, something will have to be accomplished greater than war itself. Future mankinds are listening for our decision. If we cannot rise to this second chance ours will be the blame, but the sorrow will be posterity’s.”—(The Times, Feb. 24, 1919.)

THE WEDDING GUEST

A COMEDY IN FOUR ACTS

BY

J. M. BARRIE

NEW YORK
CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS
1900

Published in 1893. This strangely made-up edition is evidently connected with an edition of A Tillyloss Scandal, which appeared in the same series (No. 256). A Tillyloss Scandal is composed of twelve gatherings each of 8 leaves and its text ends on p. 183, while the above edition of A Powerful Drug begins, as stated, on p. 185. A Tillyloss Scandal contains the first five chapters as found in the edition as detailed in No. 16; A Powerful Drug contains the remaining chapters and, beginning on the disconnectedly paginated leaf (p. 197), there are added the last 12 chapters and in same order as in Two of Them (see No. 17).
